Hurricane Update

HAMILTON, Bermuda - Catlin Group Limited ('CGL': London Stock Exchange), the international specialist property and casualty insurer and reinsurer, has completed its initial estimate of losses arising from Hurricane Wilma and has reviewed its loss estimates for Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

Catlin estimates its losses from Hurricane Wilma to be approximately US$45 million, net of reinsurance.

There has been no material change to the estimated net loss of approximately US$60 million from Hurricane Rita previously advised to the market.

On 19 October 2005, Catlin affirmed its loss estimate for Hurricane Katrina of US$275 million gross and US$125 million net of reinsurance. That estimate was consistent with a market loss of US$40 billion. Since that time, little detailed loss information has emerged. However, anecdotal information, loss advices on individual inwards reinsurance contracts and the weight of market commentary suggest that the market loss is likely to exceed that amount.

Catlin's direct insurance losses with respect to Hurricane Katrina continue to be within expectations, and significant reinsurance protection remains for those accounts. Loss details for the catastrophe reinsurance book, which is not reinsured, remain incomplete. While the loss notifications received to date in these classes are unsupported by detailed information or analysis, they have been larger than initially anticipated. Catlin is therefore increasing its net loss estimate for Hurricane Katrina by US$75 million to US$200 million.

Catlin's estimated net losses from Katrina, Rita and Wilma total approximately US$305 million.

In spite of the unprecedented natural catastrophe losses during 2005, Catlin remains optimistic that it will achieve a small profit for the year. This demonstrates the strong underlying performance of Catlin's portfolio.

Stephen Catlin, chief executive, said:

"The global insurance industry has experienced an unprecedented level of losses from Hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma, which will create challenges for the market. However, the net losses sustained by Catlin are broadly consistent with our modelled assumptions for events of this magnitude.

"Catlin's balance sheet remains strong. This demonstrates the value in Catlin's strategy of underwriting diverse classes of business and continually seeking uncorrelated risk. As the year-end renewal season begins, we are ready to take advantage of significantly improved underwriting opportunities across our portfolio."
